

Amy Casey (contemporary American),
Steadfast Bunch, Acrylic on panel, 2011.

Amy's education in the arts includes time at the School of Performing And Visual Arts in Erie, Pennsylvania, the Yale Summer School of Arts and Music and a bachelor of fine arts in painting from the Cleveland Institute of Art. She continues to live and work in Cleveland. Her paintings celebrate the fascination and love she has for the urban landscape.

In her own words: “ I am consistently fascinated by the resilience of life and our ability to keep going in the face of sometimes horrendous or ridiculous circumstances.”

The career of Amy Casey is rapidly on the rise. In 2009 she received the Emerging Artist of the Year and Creative Workforce Fellowship from the Cleveland Community Partnership for the Arts and Culture. One of her paintings has been used as an illustration on the opinion page of the New York Times. Since 2009 her work has been included in solo and group shows in Chicago, Provincetown, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Kansas City.
